Skills for Life

We spend our whole lives learning things, sometimes without even noticing it – everything from walking and talking, to being able to use a computer, or speaking a new language. And, there are also many more, abstract skills that we need in life.